by telegraph last night, and no doubt Dr. Blue is on his way to the seat of the epidemic now.

Dr. Blue is the brother of Liquicant Victor Blue, of the United States navy, who was conspleuous for galantry in the Santingo naval blockade during the Spanish War, and who was removed from the gunboat Bensington to the hospital at San Diego, Cal., the day before the spinosin on the vessel.

Henry Flack, the German-American citizen of Norfolk, who proposes to contest the alleged will of his wife, which is in the possession of Mrs. Hichz, of Washington and Chicago, and which transfers $50,000 worth of properly to Mrs. Heinz, has returned from Washington with his attorney, William H. White. They saw the alleged will there, and Mr. Heinz declares that he will make affdavit that the paper was not signed by his wife. He has a will made at the time he transferred the property to his wife, leaving all of the property to him. WHO BUILDS THE ROAD?

The question of who is building the Tidwater Roles forward rapidly. The coptractors are pushing the grading here with necelerating sneed. General Manager Dupuy said to-day that there are six parties of graders at work between Kilby Avenue and Sewell's Point. Three of the parties are felling trees and cutting undergrowth to clear the right of way from Norfolk to the terminus. (Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

CHARLOTTESVILLE, VA., August
6.—Mr. Peter B. Rouss, of New York, son and heir of the late Charles Broadway Rouss, has established at the University the erection of two new adjunct profesecrships, one of civil and one of mechanical engineering, to be supported by him and to be known as the Rouss memorial adjunct professorships.

The faculty of the engineering department thus expanded, consists of fifteen professors and other instructors, six in the pure sciences and nine in the appiled sciences. The growth in attendance has kept pace with the enlargement in the facilities and in the teaching staff,
In 1903-04, the attendance was forty per cent, larger than in 1902-03; and again in 1904-05, it was more than fifty per cent,
larger than in 1903-04.

A Petition to Repeal the Eleven O'clock Closing

Law. THE MERCHANTS AND UNIONS

Likely to Be a Clash Between the Two Organizations.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
NEWPORT NISWS, VA., August 7.—A polition is being circulated throughout the city asking the Council to repeal the ordinance compelling the saloons to close at 11:30 o'clock P. M., which became effective on May I, of this year. The petition already has been signed by fifty-four merchants and business men, among them being many of the leading men of the city. It is argued that as this is a scaport city the ordinance is doing the place material harm. Most of the merchants favor closing the saloons at midnight; soc think 1 o'clock in the morning is a proper time, and others believe thore should be no limit.

The petition will be presented to the Board of Aldermen at its next meeting. On account of a resolution recently adopted by the Merchant's Association of this city the merchants and the labor unions are liable to clash, in the near future. The Merchants' Association adopted a resolution providing that its members should not enter into advertising schemes, regular newspapers, bill boards and theatrical programmes excepted, unless the proposition has been considered and endorsed by the board of directors. The board of directors has refused to endorse the proposition has been considered and endorsed by the board of directors. The board of directors has refused to endorse the programme for the joint Labor Day celebration, to be held at Pine Beach on September 1, and communications have been exchanged on the subject by the Central Labor Union and the Merchants' Association. The outcome is awaited with considerable interest.

John Carey, a negro boarding house keeper, was fined $100 and costs in the police court this morning for selling liquor without license. Carey's place was raided yosterday by Chief of Police Heynolds. Yesterday was the new chief's first Sunday on duty.

A BLESSING, SAYS

the Richmond Chamber of Commerce and active as a public spirited citizen, was asked what he thought of the new de-parture of The Times-Dispatch.

"People Will Welcome It."

He said: "I have read with a great deal of pleasure the announcement of The Times-Dispatch of fits purpose to publish a paper every day in the year, Mondays and holidays included. The people of this cemmunity will cordially welcome this additional evidence of enterprise on the rart, of The Times-Dispatch in placing them in respect to the matter of news on a parity with any other city in the country. This movement should be especially appreciated because in all probability in its inception it must be attended with more or less less to the paper. The fact, however, that every city of the size of Richmond in the Utilon, so far as I am informed, has a Monday morning paper, makes it more important that Richmond should have one.

The progress of cities is largely guaged in these times by their newspaper publications. It has been something of a reproach for Richmond heretofore that she has not supplied a Monday morning paper. The fact that a community of this size has had to look to other cities for its Monday morning news has, in my sugament, been a distinct disadvantage. "People Will Welcome It."

for its Monday morning news has, in my judgment, been a distinct disadvantage, both to the community and to the Rich both to the community and to the Richmond papers.

A people forced to buy outside papers on Monday may readily be led to take those papers during the other days of the week.

Appreciate the Support.

Appreciate the Support.

Having answered your questions, as far as I can on the instant they are put, about your proposed Monday morning publication, I would be glad to express the appreciation of the Chamber of Commerce of the valuable support given by The Times-Dispatch to the movement inaugurated by the Chamber for bringing about better connections between this city and the Valley of Virginia, the Shenandoah Valley and the Piedmont section. The visit of your special correspondents to those sections and the admirable letters written by them, reflecting the sentiment of the communities visited by them with respect to this matter of better connections with Richmond, are most valuable. In my judgment the foundation has been laid by this policy of your paper for a closer co-operation between the people of Richmond and the people of those sections in the matter of securing satisfactory schedules, connections and freight rates."

"Boon and Blessing.

Judge George L. Christian, former president of the Chamber of Commerce, director of the National Bank of Virginia, a lawyer of wide reputation and prominent in civip and Confederate circles, in answer to a question asked him regarding the Monday morning issue, said:

"Whilst I have not given the details of the subject any special consideration." I have for some time been of the opinion that a Monday morning's paper was demanded by the spirit of the times. If we are to keep abreast with other progressive cities, then we must do what is done in those cities, especially along the line of disseminating the news and advertising what we have to offer the public, I understand this can be done and will be done by The Times-Dispatch in a way that will give the editors and operatives of the paper at least twenty-four hours in the week, and the greater part of the Sabbath will not be utilized in getting out the paper. If the publication can be succeed the sabbath will not be intilized in getting out the paper. If the publication on the Sabbath as to deprive the editor's and operatives of the Monday morning the paper of proper opportunities for the community, especially as the failure to have such a paper subjects our other communities where such a paper is issued."

An Editor's View,

An Editor's View.

An Editor's View.

Mr. Alfred B. Williams, president and managing editor of the News Leader, in speaking of The Times-Dispatch's Monday morning paper, said:

"It has been easy to see for a long time that a Monday morning paper in Richmond was inevitable. It is domanded by the conditions of modern life. Several attempts in that direction have failed in the past, indicating, I think, that a Monday morning paper, as a separate and independent institution, will not support itself. We cannot have it except as an addition to some newspaper already established and organized. Of course, The Times-Dispatch is the logical source and faundation for such an enterprise. Strangers coming here have been accustomed to express sheering wonder at the absence of a Monday morning newspaper in Richmond. So far as I know, this is the only community in the size in the country that lacks such a spublication. If Sunday work could be avoided I would prefer it, but the Monday morning paper is ineviting the monday morning paper is meving the monday morning paper is meving the morning morning paper is ineviting the morning morning paper is ineviting the morning morning paper is meving the morning morni

"Success From the Start."

Mr. A. R. Holderby, Jr. general manager of the Evening Journal, spoke encouragingly of the proposed "all the news, all the time" policy of The Times-Dispitch, He said:

Praise From Mr. Hutzler.

Mr. Henry Hutzler, a banker, who takes a lively interest in city affairs, spoke heartily in praise of The Times-Dispatch in its policy of publishing every day of the year. Mr. Hutzler said:

"Yes; 1 think The Times-Dispatch is taking a great siride forward, and in doing so the city takes a great stride forward, or a city is judged larsely by its newspapers. A Monday morning paper is justifyed to the community than is a Sunday paper, and it has long been a surprise to our outside friends that a city of Riemond's importance, with its thrift, energy and etterprise, should be without a Monday morning paper. It seems, however, that 'all things come to him who waits, and although we have waited long and impatiently, we are at last to have what other dies of loss importance have had for many years. Richmond has long censed to be a town, and her every commercial throb pants for a glimpse of a Monday morning newspaper, published at home.

"Tis true, we have our newspapers from outside, but why should Richmond allow her held, in the city and outside, to be catered to and supplied by newspapers published out of the State? Whatever affects Richmond affects the State what we have and that which reflects credit upon our elty reflects credit upon our State, and that which reflects credit upon our State of an avery day' newspaper.

"My best wishes accompany my congratuations."

"All the News."

"All the News."

The management of The Times-Dispatch again calls attention to the fact that up to September 4th the old subscription rates will obtain. That is, that every subscriber that is now on the list and every one who subscribes before September 4th will receive all the Monday morning issues and all holiday issues free of cost.

After September 4th the new rate will be changed, which will be an increase of it a year for all the issues.

All who subscribe for and read The Times-Dispatch will get a paper every day in the year and "all the news, all the time."
